

A Free Android App That Will Streamline Spring-Cleaning

App-Order.com's "Save Your Booty" App Simplifies Spring Cleaning

The arrival of spring marks not only warmer weather, but also a time for cleaning, organizing, and taking stock of the things in our homes and storage units. While this can be a daunting undertaking for many families, App-Order.com has developed a free app that will simplify the process and make it a rewarding experience, rather than a stressful one.

With the "Save Your Booty" app, users are able to scan any item that has a barcode and store it with a picture, complete description, retail value, current value, and current location. Once scanned, the items can be organized by category for a handheld catalogue of items.

This catalogue can save its users trips to the storage unit, to their wine cellar, their basement, their mother's garage, or wherever it is that serves as a warehouse to keep the clutter out of their lives. By adding inventorying belongings to a spring cleaning weekend, users save themselves countless hours and untold frustration.

The beginning of spring provides the ideal time for taking inventory of goods, not only because that is when most people do their major "purge" for the year, but also because it is literally the "calm before the storm" for much of the country. As spring rolls into Tornado Alley, having an inventory of goods and their worth is a major asset when filing insurance claims.

This completely free app is the most efficient way for collectors to track their collections, homeowners to inventory their belongings for insurance purposes, and attorneys to manage estate planning. There are countless uses for the "Save Your Booty" app, limited only to the imagination of its users.
